MISSION MINUTES

The Gospel Coalition notes, faith is not being passed on, 'not by parents laying it on too thick, but by taking too light of a touch.' One of the strongest predictors of an adult who stays in the faith is simply having parents who talk to them about it at home several times a week. Children raised in those homes were more than twice as likely to attend church, pray daily, and refer to faith as very important in young adulthood — and roughly 20% more likely to identify as Christian and affirm the divinity of Christ.
