MISSION MINUTES

Iranian officials recently seized the property of St. Peter Evangelical Church halting Christian worship services that had been held there for over 150 years. When Iranian authorities seized the church, they also evicted 20 Assyrian and Armenian families who lived inside the 10-acre compound. The families were reportedly given about two weeks to leave their homes. Authorities threatened to arrest the church leaders if they failed to comply. The closure of St. Peter Church leaves Iran with no operating Protestant churches that offer services in Iran's official language of Persian.
